KITCHEN COLLECTION

With its ECLECTICA COLLECTION Francesco Molon puts a unique Italian accent on Deco styling, stepping out of the box of traditional design and into the glitz and glam of Art Deco. The collection overflows with romance, elegance and sophistication, creating a sense of theatre out of daily living. Exotic wood species, such as ebony makassar and zebrawood, are brought into the design equation with a richer and more reflective glossy finish dramatising the pure star quality of each design. The version in lime gloss Metallic shines with its precious pearly brilliance. With its diversity of character, Eclectica takes Interior styling to a whole new level.

The smooth doors are lacquered with a shiny polyester finish and graced with innovative carved cornices. The polished details of the central island intensify the feeling of being wrapped in a sophisticated and unique ambiance.

Martika

A real challenge to the traditional concept of a kitchen, this composition offers a transom with distinctly "d'antan" decoration treated through a modern and highly innovative lacquering process. An organized and functional system is provided through a blending of materials including ebony makassar, mother-pearl, shaded lacquering, marble, silver details, amber-shaded mirrors, and polished stainless-steel insertions. Each element weaving together to form a tapestry of continuous cross-references, consonances and contrasts.

A kitchen reserved for a select few; those who can truly appreciate the deep aesthetic sense, offered by this rarest of models.

eclectica collection

Standing for power and beauty the decorative carvings of the cornice and central island enrich the entire composition. The new door type (code FMT) is constituted by a perimeter frame in chromed steel with a central porcelain stoneware panel. The striking grain's giving the effect of honey onyx.

The warming oven retracts under the work area revealing a scene of sumptuous wood grains; the top and back in Calacatta marble.

The bright champagne finish of the center contrasted by the intense ebony makassar of the two sides; with equipped columns.

A bronze mirrored wall highlights the wine display cabinet (code U531) with ambry, transparent windows, pilasters, double-sided cellar compartment, bottle holders, cup holders and trays. The sides show the two columns typical of the Martika design; on the left, with carved decoration in the deco style referencing the preceding Artica model; on the right, a new type of column with high-gloss lacquer and steel inserts with modern and clean features.

Roses

A reinterpretation on Italian designs of the 1950s, this updated kitchen features a "curvilinear" approach made famous by Carlo Mollino and rooted in the free flow of curved lines indicative of Art Nouveau design.

Deeply "architectural", this model focuses on symmetrical form, which in turn, influences the entire space that hosts it.

Significant for its unique shape, this model is a true collector's item.

*A city is not worth more

J. S. Chocano

A perhaps unintentional homage to the graphic creations of 70's designer Ken Scott results in the actualization of a rose inlay in mahogany and maple on the central counter and large shaped doors .

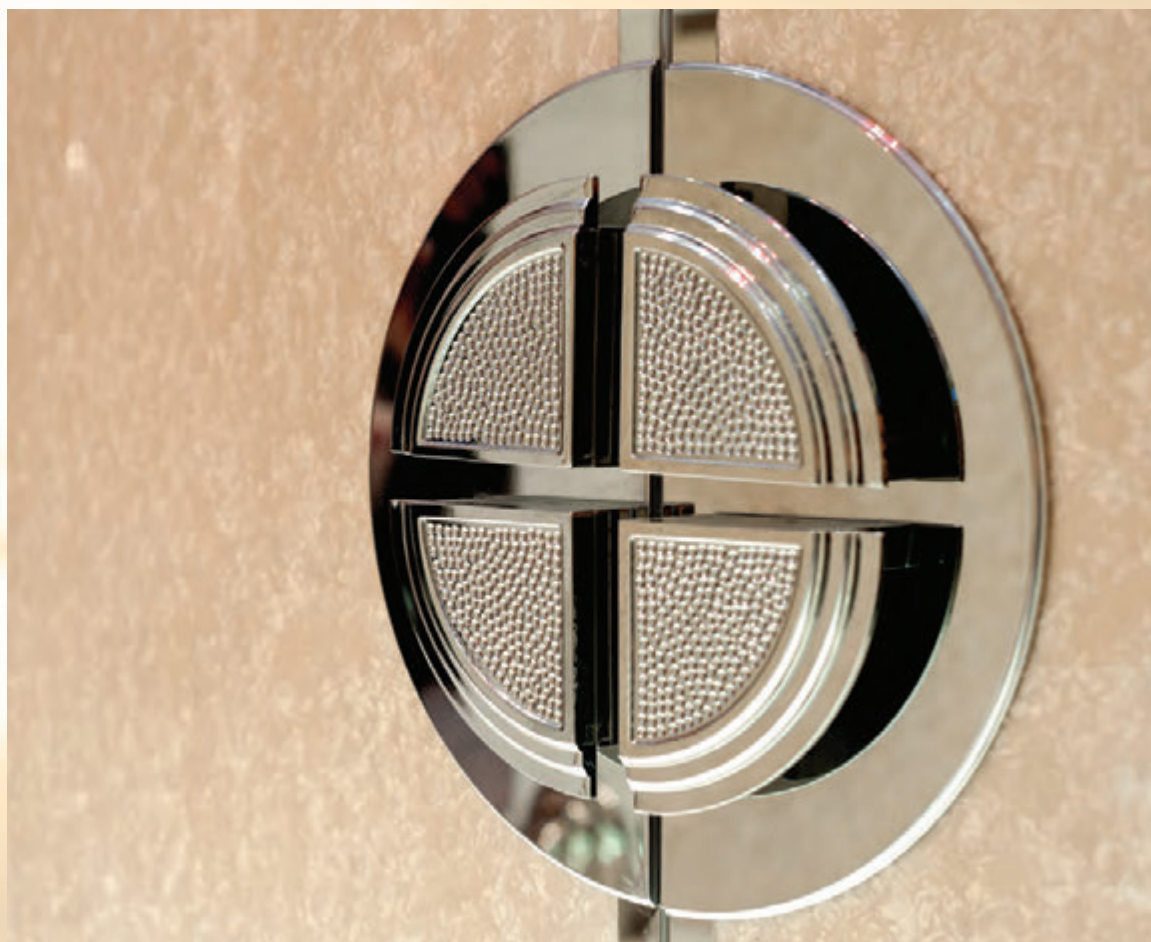

Each precious door is enriched with a refined lacquer; lending a pearly effect contrasted by the rigorous use of polished steel.

KITCHEN COLLECTION

Francesco Molon's CLASSIC COLLECTION offers the finest custom cabinetry designed to individual specifications.

With so much emphasis on artistic expression and detailing, it's hard to imagine that Francesco Molon would give equal attention to functionality. With a savvy technical department and top notch designers, all plans and details are carefully studied and their feasibility is meticulously controlled.

Carvings are often used to give emphasis to the decorations and our skilled artisans still create them by hand, using the same techniques that were used hundreds of years ago.

Also veneers are painstakingly hand-worked, and the final effect has the look of a real antique piece of furniture.
